

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A computer includes a computing display subsystem screen that includes a processor is detachably connected to the remainder of the computer. When the computing display subsystem is detached, communication may continue between the computing display subsystem and the base station using one of a plurality of techniques, including radio frequency or infrared communications.